The force of electricity furnishes employment for 5,000,000.
It is said that the Chinamen of New York send home $150,000 a year.

Owing to the craze for turquoises, stones that sold for $1 a year ago are now worth $12 or $15.

Only twelve Indians are left of 1,000 who inhabited the Yosemite Valley a few years ago.

No one likes to pass through a yard where he must dodge clothes-poles; but "the line must be drawn somewhere."

There is so much electricity in a kiss that engaged lovers have been known to depend upon it altogether to light a spacious room.

Some people are always behind-hand. Some day one of these fellows will neglect to die until a week or so after his own funeral.

Of the 4,000,000 immigrants who have come to America from Europe since 1880, probably not more than one-fifth, at the outside, have found homes in the south.

BOARDER: "What kind of a duck is this?"—Landlady: "The butcher didn't tell me."—Boarder (after trying his knife on it again): "I should call it a 'decayed duck.'"

The different kinds of laughs they have: Dudes: Ha! Ha! Farmers: Ho! Ho! Teamsters: Haw! Haw! Balloonists: Hi! Hi! Feed dealers: Hay! Hay! Women: He! He!

MINISTER (dining with the family) You were a nice little boy in church to-day. I noticed you kept very quiet.—Bobby: Yes sir; I was afraid I would wake pa up.—J. Y. San.

One by one the problems of life are solved. The supreme court of Pennsylvania has just decided that a housekeeper may fry oysters without regard to the inconvenience of neighbors.

"He: "I declare, Miss Angelina, you treat me worse than your dog!" She: "Oh, Mr. de Mogygyns, how can you say so? I'm sure I never made the slightest difference between you!"

The dog corps in the French army is being carefully trained at Belfort. Large dogs are chosen. Every day they are shown soldiers in German uniforms, and taught to fly at them on sight.

Sue, speaking of the responsibilities of matrimony: "Would you be afraid to marry on a thousand a year, Tom?" He: "Not a bit, if I could only find a girl with an income of that amount."

An exchange says, wives should know where their husbands spend their evenings when away from home. Whether in the transaction of legitimate business, or in some poker room squandering that which belongs to their wives and children. The man who gambles, robs his family of not only honor, but also of their support, for no business man can be a successful business man and spend his nights in a poker room. Wives and mothers, you have a right to know where your husbands and sons spend their leisure hours. If a husband or son comes up missing at the proper time, you should go at once to those rooms in which the light remains burning all night and see whether or not they are there.

One of the greatest stay-at-home ladies we have heard of lately is Mrs. W. B. Shoemaker, of Muscle Fork township, who has not been away from her home, not even to visit a neighbor, for more than twenty-five years, and most of that time she has been in the enjoyment of good health.

The value of live stock in the United States is $1,279,560,190, which is more than the combined value of the stock of all other countries. Russia and Great Britain each have $80,000,000, Germany $60,000,000, and Austria-Hungary $35,000,000. In dairy product Germany leads with $83,573,000, the United States being second, with $50,482,186.

Tax late Dr. Guthrie, of Scotland, was a strong temperance man. On one occasion he expressed his opinion of whisky in these words: "Whisky is good in its place. There is nothing like whisky in this world for preserving a man when he is dead. But it is one of the worst things in the world for preserving a man when he is living. If you want to keep a dead man, put him in whisky; if you want to kill a living man, put whisky in him."

The following story is told concerning one of Stanberry's young men: Not long since he wrote two postal cards on entirely different subjects. He then turned them over and addressed them, but by mistake placed the address on the wrong cards. The result was that the shirt maker got a polite invitation to take a carriage ride, while the young man's girl was made frantic by receiving the following: "Please send me a sample of the stuff your shirts are made of."

The greatest power in the civilized world to-day is that of the press, and it is practically unrestrained and free from regulation by law. This force makes and unmake presidents, governors, senators, representatives in congress, legislators, judges, and all officers in our complex system of government. It is superior to the executive, legislative and judicial authorities because it creates and destroys them. In short, the influence of the press is omnipotent and omnipresent.

Mrs. T. E. Allen, living west of town, was a caller at this office last Monday evening. She handed us a recipe for the cure of scarlet fever which she says never fails. It is said to be harmless if taken by a well person but will cure scarlet fever in every instance. The following is the recipe: "Sulphate of zinc, one grain; foxglove (digitalis), one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two table spoonfuls of water. When thoroughly mixed add four ounces water. Take a teaspoonful every hour. Disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child smaller doses according to age."—Shelbyville Herald.

For many years Missouri has been a passage-way of the immense tide of immigration which has swept over her to the better land of Kansas. Poor old Missouri. She is still fighting the war of the rebellion, and her mossbacks will go through the form of voting for Andrew Jackson for president in November. When Missouri emerges from the woods she may do something herself.—Fargo (Kan.) News.

There, there, honey! don't fret about "Poor old Missouri." Just say and think what you please about her and she will continue to be the godmother who will feed and clothe your hungry, drouth-stricken emigrants, who return to her borders to live on the fat of the land after losing their wealth and time in blandishments on your sterile old maid, Kansas. Missouri has been the godmother to Kansas; she fed and clothed her paupers, and now for that kindness you return insults and ignominy. For shame!—Cameron San.

Renews Her Youth.
Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years, could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own household work. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth and removed completely all disease and pain. Try a bottle, 50c, and $1, at W. C. Gaston & Co's. drug store."

Deadly Flames.
SPRINGFIELD, MASS., March 7.—The new office of the Evening Union at the corner of Main and Worthington streets was burned out about 4 o'clock this afternoon and the blaze was attended with the most sickening horror ever witnessed in this city, six of the employees meeting a terrible death, most of them jumping from the fifth story and being crushed into a shapeless mass below. Six others were badly injured. The fire was first discovered in the mailing room and clouds of smoke were pouring out of the lower story windows before the fifty souls on the upper floor were aware of their danger. The flames shot up an old elevator in the rear, cutting off escape by the stairs and most of the employees who escaped found their way to the ground by way of the roof in the rear.

The Farmer and the Tariff.
Bill Nye.
"What are the prospects of farmers in your state?"
"Well, they are poor. Never was so poor, in fact, since I've been there. Folks wonder why boys leave the farm. My boys left so as to get protected, they said, and so they went into a clothing store, one of 'em, and one went into hardware and one is talkin' protection in the legislature this winter. They said that farmin' was gettin' to be like fishin' and huntin', well enough for a man that has means and leisure, but they couldn't make a livin' at it, they said. An other boy is in a drug store, and the man that hires him says he is a royal feller."

"Kind of a castor royal feller," I said with a shriek of laughter.
He waited until I had laughed all I wanted to and then he said:
"I've always hollered for high tariff in order to hyst the public debt, but now we've got the national debt copped I wish they'd take a little back at mine. I've put in fifty years farmin'. I never drank lickin' in any form. I've worked from ten to eighteen hours a day, been economical in cloz and never went to a show more'n a dozen times in my life, raised a family and learned upward of 200 calves to drink out of a tin pail without blowing all their vittles up my sleeve. My wife worked alongside o' me sewin' new seats on the boys' pants, skimm'n' milk and even helped me load hay. For forty years we toiled along together and hardly got time to look into each other's faces or dared to stop and get acquainted with each other. Then her health failed. Ketched cold in the spring house, prob'ly skimm'n' milk and washin' pans and scaldin' pails and spunkin' butter. Anyhow, she took in a long breath one day while the doctor and me was watchin' her and she says to me, 'Tienry,' says she, 'I've got a chance to rest,' and she put one tired, worn out hand on top of the other tired, worn out hand, and I knew she'd gone where they don't work all day and do chores all night."
"I took time to kiss her then. I'd been too busy for a good while previous to that, and then I called in the boys. After the funeral it was too much for them to stay around and eat the cookin' we had to put up with, and nobody spoke up around the house as we used to. The boys quit whistlin' around the barn and talked kind of low by themselves about goin' to town and gettin' a job."
"They're all gone now, and the snow is four feet deep on mother's grave up there in the old berryin' ground."

Then both of us looked out of the car window quite a long while without saying anything.
"I don't blame the boys for going into something else long's other things pay better; but I say—and say what I know—that the man who holds the prosperity of this country in his hands, the man that actually makes money for other people to spend, the man that eats three good simple, square meals a day and goes to bed at 9 o'clock, so that future generations with blood and cool brains can go from his farm to the senate and congress and the White House—he is the man that gets left at last to run the farm, with nobody to help him but a hired man and a high protection tariff. The farm in our state is mortgaged for over $700,000,000. Ten of our western states—I see by the papers—has got about three billion and a half mortgages on their farms, and that don't count the chattel mortgages filed with the town clerks on farm machinery, stock wagons and even crops, by gosh! that ain't two inches high under the snow. That's what the prospects is for farmers now. The government is rich, but the men that made it, the men that fought perairie fires and perairie wolves and Indians and potato bugs and blizzards, and has paid the war debt and pensions and everything else an' hollered for the Union and the Republican party and high tariff and everything else that they was told to, is left high and dry this cold winter with a mortgage of seven billion and a half on the farms they have earned and saved a thousand times over."

"Yes; but look at the glory of sending from the farm the future president, the future senator and the future member of congress."
"That looks well on paper, but what does it really amount to? Soon as a farmer boy gets in a place like that he forgets the soil that produced him and holds his head as high as a hollyhock. He bellers for protection to everybody but the farmer, and while he sits around in a high-society room with a fire in it day and night, his father on the farm has to kindle his own fire in the morning with elm shivers, and he has to wear his son's lawn tennis suit next to him or freeze to death, and he has to milk in an old gray shawl that has held that member of congress when he was a baby, by gorry! and the old lady has to sojourn through the winter in the flannels that Silas wore at the riggater before he went to congress."
"So I say, and I think that congress agrees with me. D—n a farmer, anyhow!"
He then went away.

Merely Nominal.

A correspondent asks the Times what direct benefit the farmer gets from the tariff. He asks because his local paper prints a table showing that agricultural products are protected. Upon that table the farmer bases a claim that the farmer gets direct benefit from the tariff as well as the manufacturer.
The high tariff men have put duties on agricultural products, but only to hoodwink the farmer. What difference would it make if the duty on breadstuffs were 500 per cent, as long as we export breadstuffs and do not import them? The farmer's market has to be in foreign ports because he raises more than can be used at home and the price of his whole product is fixed by the price of what he sells abroad. He would still pay a tax on what he buys without receiving any bonus on what he sells if the tariff on breadstuffs were nominally doubled or quadrupled. He has to compete with the pauper labor of India and Russia and has to fight his battle of life without any special kindness from his country's laws. He pays most of the state and county taxes beside the bulk of the federal revenues collected under the tariff.—Kansas City Times.

Dangerous Drinks.
The Philadelphia News prints the following: A bar-tender plaintively bewailed the necessity of having to rub congealed drops of sticky beer off the bar. "But if I left them remain," said he, in the tone of one seeking compassion, "they rot the wood." "They rot the wood, do they?" fiercely repeated a beer-bibber, "then what in the name of common sense does beer do to my stomach?" Replied the manipulator of drinks, "It is beyond me to tell. Of one thing I am confident, and that is man's stomach is made of cast-iron. Elsewise, how could he withstand the fluids he pours into it? Let me show you something." He placed a piece of raw meat on the counter, and dropped upon it a small measure of imported ginger-ale. In five minutes the meat had parted into little pieces, as though hacked by a dull knife. It is not surprising that beer drinkers are held by life insurance companies to be extra hazardous risks.—National Temperance Advocate.

Man and His Best Girl.
The Rev. E. D. Huntley, formerly of this city, lectured recently in Baltimore on "The Girl to Love and How to Treat Her." Among other things he said that the girl for the average American citizen to love must keep herself abreast with the times, read the papers and be able to talk politics, in addition to putting up with the little weaknesses of her husband. If he wants to smoke she should let him smoke at home and not drive him for that indulgence to the nearest saloon. She must know how to economize, and not illuminate the whole house with a full head of gas in each room. Men shouldn't tell their sweethearts they will give them precious stones; they will probably have to come down to the Rhine stones. Neither should they quote their mothers. Mother quoting is the most fruitful source of domestic infelicity, and must be avoided above all things.—Washington Critic.

DON'T SCOLD
a man for growning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these two diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he went out Atch-ty-phoo, when he has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? He has cured hundreds of other physicians have pronounced them incurable.
"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism. It had settled in the hips neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Atch-ty-phoo gave relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I consumed the whole bottle, and was cured. I am now as well as well."
